

design thesis [ 6 th year graduate] Spring 07 : "lot 30 / the suburban residence revisited", Dan Siedhoff / University of Nebraska USA

Architects are not absolutely able to prevent suburban types of new developments like this community around a domesticated sand pit between the Midwestern cities of Lincoln and Omaha. But the design thesis explores the potential of relative improvement to make an archi-/ ecofriendly living, that retains and seeks inspiration from the site specific qualities of the sand, the water and the sky as the reason one moves there, which is generally paradoxically neglected through the imposed built environments.

